Shadwell's Enbihaar aims for another milestone for Redoute's

The legendary Redoute's Choice (Danehill) will be out to break new ground on Friday night when his daughter Enbihaar lines up as favourite in the Lonsdale Cup (Gr 2, 2m) at York, amidst a bevy of races set to throw up possible Australian contenders.

The four-day Ebor meeting at York, which begins tonight, has become known as something of a hunting ground for antipodean buyers and potential Australian travellers with a raft of races set to throw up horses who will one day step out on the other side of the world.

The Lonsdale Cup is the day three feature and will be eagerly watched by Melbourne Cup (Gr 1, 3200m) futures players with horses like Dashing Willoughby (Nathaniel), now part-owned by New Zealand businessman Sir Owen Glenn, and OTI Racing's True Self (Oscar) likely travellers.

MORNING BRIEFING

Birthday boy Richards plots Melody Belle bounceback

Young gun Jamie Richards turned 31 yesterday, but even on his birthday, he was still focusing on his number one passion - the horses. Richards is hopeful that Melody Belle (Commands) can bounce back from a disappointing first-up run in the Missile Stakes (Gr 2, 1200m) by taking home Saturday's Winx Stakes (Gr 1, 1400m) at Randwick. "We have just got to put a line through that run, turn the page and get on with it," Richards said. Full story page 6 >>

<< Continued from page 1 It is a race that often produces a Melbourne Cup candidate, including subsequent Flemington third Il Paradiso (Galileo) last year. However, the leading contender is likely to be John Gosden's bonny mare Enbihaar as she steps up to the two miles for the first time.

Racing in the Shadwell blue and white - just like her Australian namesake, Group 2 winner Enbihaar (Magnus), who was also owned by Sheikh Hamdan - the English Enbihaar is one of the leading lights from Redoute's Choice's two seasons in which he shuttled to France.

In 2013 and 2014, the Arrowfield stalwart stood at the Aga Khan's Haras de Bonneval, covering some of Europe's finest mares.

Enbihaar's dam Chanterelle (Tremolino) may not have been a leading light among that group, which included Zarkava (Zamindar), Born Gold (Blushing Groom) and Shareta (Sinndar), but the exploits of her daughter have put her in rare territory.

Redoute's Choice has provided the Shadwell operation with plenty of success: a Blue Diamond Stakes (Gr 1, 1200m) winner in Nadeem, three South African top-level winners in Rafeef, Mustaaqem and Majmu and a stallion prospect with Elzaam. However, Enbihaar is the icing on the cake, the perfect addition to an already fruitful relationship, according to Sheikh Hamdan's racing manager Angus Gold.

"We've bought a lot of Redoute's Choice yearlings over the years and we've had some particularly good ones," Gold told ANZ Bloodstock News yesterday. "Nadeem was from his first crop - annoyingly I was the underbidder on Miss Finland, which was a pity - but we've also had the two brothers, Rafeef and Mustaaqem and Majmu, who was a champion, a fabulous filly.

"We also sent nine mares down to Australia from Europe to be covered by Redoute's Choice to northern hemisphere time and they came back here. From the eight foals that were returned, three of those were stakes winners.

"We then bought a little horse called Elzaam who we bought at Deauville and was second in the Coventry at Ascot as a two-year-old.

"He has had a massive influence on us, really. From our point of view, Nadeem was early days and we got a stallion from his first crop, Majmu, the sprinting brothers and now Enbihaar. We've also got some lovely broodmares on the farm in Australia by Redoute's, and he's doing a wonderful job as a broodmare sire as we all know, so hopefully his influence will live on for a long time to come.

"He was an extraordinary, exceptional stallion. His name will appear for a long time to come - both through his sons and his daughters. He was an amazing horse, a horse of incredible presence when you saw him; a big, strong, scopey horse. It was amazing he was as athletic as he was for the size of him.

"It's lovely to finish off with one of the last of his progeny over here to be as good as she is."

A Listed winner at just her fourth start when she had just turned four, taking the Daisy Warwick Fillies' Stakes (Listed, 1m 4f), she added three Group 2 wins during her four-year-old season last year, taking the Lancashire Oaks (Gr 2, 1m 4f), the Lillie Langtry Stakes (Gr 2, 1m 6f) and the Park Hill Stakes (Gr 2, 1m 6.5f) in succession.

Last start, Enbihaar added a second Lillie Langtry to her record, setting her up for a tilt against the males in the Lonsdale Cup. It is another unlikely step in a career that Gold says has been filled with surprises.

"It was amazing to me that he (Sheikh Hamdan) kept her in training as a five-year-old," Gold said. "In my 34 years he's only ever done that once before, and that was probably 30 years ago. They normally all retire as three-year-olds, and we kept her in training as she never really had a chance as a three-year-old.

"She was very immature and had a few niggling problems, so therefore we persuaded him to keep her in training as a four-year-old. And then luckily he decided to keep her in training again. He was enjoying her so much last year. She will definitely go to stud at the end of this year.

"We were pressing him to keep another filly, Nazeef, in training, and luckily he agreed to it and she's gone on and won a Group 1 this year, so that was satisfying. And on the back of her he decided to keep Enbihaar in training as well. She's very lightly raced and had her enthusiasm still and enjoyed her racing, so that always helps.

"Enbihaar has this fantastic action - a lovely galloping stride on her. We think she'll get the two miles, so we'll see, but she's done us proud whatever, she's been a star and kept her enthusiasm going the whole way."

Significantly, victory would give the late Redoute's Choice another milestone with his first Group winner at two miles.

While Redoute's Choice was a top sprinter-miler and is renowned as a producer of similar stock, he has proven versatile in the stallion barn. Classy fillies Miss Finland, Samantha Miss and Royal Descent were able to win from sprint trips to the mile and a half of an Oaks, while his Derby winners have included Wylie Hall, Redoute's Dancer, Howard Be Thy Name, Empires Choice and the filly Dariana. Continued on page 4>>

He has had one stakes-winning two-miler before in La Amistad, who took out the Andrew Ramsden Stakes (Listed, 3200m) at Flemington in 2015. She had as good a pedigree as any to handle the Flemington 3200 metres as a three-quarter sister to three-time Melbourne Cup winner Makybe Diva (Desert King).

"Like all good stallions, he could throw anything," Gold said. "On the whole they are shorter runners than what she is, but she's from a stout European family. I think also the other thing, like with so many horses - like Fastnet Rock for example - is that when Redoute's Choice came over here all the Europeans thought, 'he's a fast horse, we'll send some staying mares to him' and on the whole, what you get out of that is staying horses.

"A lot of breeders expected the stallions to put speed into their slower mares and it didn't always work. And this mare, there's a bit of stamina in there."

The Melbourne Cup would be an unlikely target for Enbihaar in any given year, but particularly one in which travel restrictions are heightened due to Covid-19. Instead, she is likely to travel across the English Channel once more to try and snare that elusive Group 1 win in the Prix de Royallieu (Gr 1, 1m 6f) on Arc weekend.

The other leading Melbourne Cup lead-up comes with Saturday's Ebor (1m 6f), traditionally the richest handicap in Europe and last year worth £1 million (A$1.82 million), although this year the prize fund stands at just a quarter of that amount.

Australian-owned horses Pondus (Sea The Moon), Le Don De Vie (Leroidesanimaux) and Almanica (Australia) will try to advance their claims for a Melbourne campaign, while horses like Trueshan (Planteur) have also been the subject of offers from Australian buyers.

The Phoenix Thoroughbreds-owned Deja (Youmzain), considered a potential Ebor contender, is also a potential visitor after the operation announced last week it was pulling out of British racing.

Day 1 of Ebor Festival to produce other Australian clues

Tonight's Juddmonte International (Gr 1, 1m 2.5f) has been used by Cox Plate (Gr 1, 2040m) aspirants before, although the withdrawal of Aspetar (Al Kazeem) means that it is unlikely to be a guide this year.

"I wasn't convinced his last piece of work was up to scratch," the five-year-old's trainer Roger Charlton told Racing Post. "We did a routine blood test on him this morning, got the results this evening and decided it wouldn't be right for him to run in a Group 1 race.

"There aren't any obvious targets, but the Prix Dollar on Arc weekend is a possibility. We are still considering going to Australia for the Cox Plate, but that will depend on the Australian authorities. Ultimately the Emir's Trophy in Qatar in February will be high on his agenda."

The Great Voltigeur Stakes (Gr 2, 1m 4f), the primary lead-in to next month's St Leger (Gr 1, 1m 6.5f), has also proven a strong pointer to Melbourne success in recent years.

Not since 2006 has the race been absent either a horse who would do his future racing in Australia or a horse who would perform in our biggest races. Of the five runners last year, winner Logician (Frankel) went on to land the St Leger, runner-up Constantinople (Galileo) started favourite in the Caulfield Cup (Gr 1, 2400m) at his next start and third-placed Norway (Galileo) joined Chris Waller at the start of 2020.

In 2018, Cross Counter (Teofilo) was runner-up to his stablemate Old Persian (Dubawi); at his next start, he took out the Melbourne Cup (Gr 1, 3200m).

Bluebloods Mogul (Galileo) for Aidan O'Brien and John Gosden's Darain (Dubawi) head the market, with both likely to progress to the St Leger. Neither are likely to be seen in Australia this spring, although Mogul does hold a Cox Plate entry.

IN ONE WORD, THE TRAINERS SAY

“RESILIENT”WaterhouseMORNING BRIEFING*AUSTRALIA*Birthday boy Richards plots Melody Belle bounceback

Young gun Jamie Richards turned 31 yesterday, but even on his birthday, he was still focusing on his number one passion - the horses. Richards is hopeful that Melody Belle (Commands) can bounce back from a disappointing first-up run in the Missile Stakes (Gr 2, 1200m) by taking home Saturday's Winx Stakes (Gr 1, 1400m) at Randwick. "We have just got to put a line through that run, turn the page and get on with it," Richards said. "There were a couple of things against her, she was first-up on an unsuitable wet track and got back in a small field and struggled to make ground. Her sectionals say she still ran OK and we have been happy with her at home. Kerrin (McEvoy) rang after the race and said he should probably have been fourth rather than back last in hindsight. He said don't worry, she ran OK and will improve. She had a good blow." As of last night, Melody Belle was on the third line of betting at $8 with TAB, with Master Of Wine (Maxios) and Verry Elleegant (Zed) equal favourites at $5.

New season, same rivalry for Probabeel

Also returning for Jamie Richards on Saturday is Probabeel (Savabeel), with the Surround Stakes (Gr 1, 1400m) winner set to step out in the Show County Quality (Gr 3, 1200m). There, she is likely to face her old sparring partner Funstar (Adelaide), with the pair filling the quinella on four occasions, including twice at Group 1 level. "They have a good rivalry and I'm sure Funstar will be in good form," Richards said. "(Probabeel) doesn't overexert herself in her trials. She will be vulnerable first-up and will probably find it short of her best, there is no doubt about that. I think she is in a good enough spot to be competitive. You only have to look at her trial at Avondale before she went to Australia last spring to know that she needs a bit of motivating."

Maher weighing up Winx for Prague

Prague

SPORTPIX

Ciaran Maher is considering a tilt at Saturday's Winx Stakes at Randwick with valuable three-year-old Prague (Redoute's Choice). Should he line up, Prague will be just the third to take on older horses in the past 20 years and both the others, Trusting (Tale Of The Cat) and Lonhro (Octagonal), won. Prague was a multiple Group winner last year and was placed in the Sires' Produce Stakes (Gr 1, 1400m) and Maher is confident that he is up to it. "He's one of our best colts," Maher told Racing.com. "They get the weight relief and he's a good horse. To do what he did last preparation was phenomenal as he was very raw, and I thought he did a great job and he'll only improve in every way."

Wine set to follow Northerly path

Team Hawke-trained Master Of Wine will also head to Victoria and line up in the Winx Stakes as connections get him ready to take aim at both the Caulfield Cup (Gr 1, 2400m) and Cox Plate (Gr 1, 2040m). He completed a barrier trial at Rosehill yesterday, which pleased owner Rupert Legh, who said the plan is to peak on Caulfield Cup Day, but that the Cox Plate was certainly on the agenda as well. "You take it one step at a time," Legh told Racing.com. "But you go through the Winx Stakes and then we may well bring him down here to Melbourne in preparation for a campaign towards the Caulfield Cup. That (Cox Plate) is a race that's been on our agenda. But you have target races and I think the Hawkes (stable) are well known for targeting horses towards a race and ultimately I would say the Caulfield Cup is the impression I get is where they want to head with him. Then all going well you could then target the Cox Plate for him because you don't need to do much with them after a mile-and-a-half run, you just keep them fresh for the 2000-metre race. You set a horse for a particular race and then anything after that is a bonus."

Three-from-three as a mum for More Joyous

Best Ever (Snitzel) became the latest debut winner out of eighth-time Group 1 winner More Joyous (More Than Ready) as the colt took out the Magic Millions Plate (1400m) at Pakenham yesterday. More Joyous won seven of her nine first-up runs and has an excellent record as a broodmare with her first two foals, Woman (by Frankel) and More Sundays (Fastnet Rock), both also scoring on debut. Trained by Peter Moody, Best Ever drifted in the market before his run but put up a strong performance to score by three-quarters of a length and looks one to watch. "We'll just try and build on today," Moody told Racing.com. "We're not going to get too excited and name Caulfield Guineas or anything like that (as goals), but we'll find a nice 64 somewhere in the next few weeks."

Nature Strip shines in trial

The Everest (1200m) favourite Nature Strip (Nicconi) demonstrated why he is held in such high regard for the $15 million race with another effortless trial success at Rosehill yesterday. The Chris Waller-trained Nature Strip, who is likely to be named last season's Australian Horse of the Year, was in first gear under James McDonald, cruising home for a five and a half length win over highly-touted mare Fituese (Deep Field) in the 900-metre trial. "He's come back in good order, hasn't lost any speed and he's a bit smarter in the way he is executing." McDonald told Sky Thoroughbred Central. "He seems pretty forward, even though he has a bit to go in his coat, he will improve off his first-up run and get better as his preparation gets deeper. I think he's in a better place for sure." Nature Strip is set to return in the Concorde Stakes (Gr 3, 1000m) on September 5.

Peltzer on fire at Rosehill trials

On a hot morning of barrier trials at Rosehill, one horse who really stamped himself as a horse to watch this spring is the unbeaten Peltzer (So You Think). The Gerald Ryan-trained three-year-old played up behind the barriers but once the gates opened, it was all business. While Ryan said pre-trial that he wanted Peltzer to have a strong hit out, he looked to do it with ease, holding Blossom Star (Foxwedge) and Kindergarten Stakes (Gr 3, 1100m) winner Doubtland (Not A Single Doubt) to win comfortably. "He was never a brilliant trialler, which was why they put up 20/1 at Kembla (on debut)," Ryan told Sky Thoroughbred Central. "His trial was good this morning. He fired up a little bit because of the mishap before the trial, but I'm happy with where he is at. He had a little blow, but I'm sure he'll improve off it." Peltzer will resume in the San Domenico Stakes (Gr 3, 1100m) Saturday week.

Sentimental Miss pleases at first Sydney outing

Last year's New Zealand Oaks (Gr 1, 2400m) winner Sentimental Miss (Reliable Man) made a pleasing start to her Sydney spring preparation, winning her 1100-metre trial for Group-class horses at Rosehill yesterday. She began well from her barrier to settle just in behind the leader and travelled generously through the early stages. Approaching the home turn, jockey Hugh Bowman angled her into clear galloping room and she was able to finish off nicely to win by a long head. "Hugh was very happy with her trial this morning," trainer Chris Waller said. "He said her fitness levels are good and if we wanted to go to a 1600-metre race first-up it would be no problem. Obviously she hasn't done a lot of work since being in Sydney and it was either trialling this morning or next week, but now we have got the trial into her I can give her a quiet week ahead, continue putting a little bit of condition on her and have her in the best possible shape going into her first-up run."

Glenfiddich set for rare tilt at Memsie

Trainer Peter Moody gave new acquisition Glenfiddich (Fastnet Rock) an exhibition gallop with Group 1 winner Gating (Hard Spun) between races at Pakenham yesterday and is now considering running the colt first-up in the Memsie Stakes (Gr 1, 1400m). He would be the first three-year-old in 25 years to take on the race first-up and the trainer thinks that the 1400 metres would be ideal for the horse. "Seven furlongs seems a lovely trip for the horse. So why piss around (with) shorter races?" Moody told Racing.com. "I had the option to run him Saturday at 1100 metres and that, but I just don't think (it's worth it). Fourteen hundred metres is a lovely trip for him, no weight on his back, 50.5 kilograms. And let's be honest with a lack of the Sydney horses here we might not run into a field of superstars and I think this colt is a very (high) quality colt. Why not, it's a Group 1 and I think he's a Group 1 horse. But we will let the dust settle, take him home. He will either go to the Memsie or the McNeil at 1200 metres on the same day."

Bella Vella pleasing Clarcken

Sangster Stakes (Gr 1, 1200m) winner Bella Vella (Commands) pleased Will Clarcken with her jump-out at Morphettville yesterday and the trainer is working towards a return in the McEwen Stakes (Gr 2, 1000m) on September 5 for the five-year-old. "Rapt with her this morning," Clarcken told Racing.com. "(She) came out nice and steady. She is just happy to relax, this mare, this preparation like she was last and got into a nice rhythm. There wasn't a lot of depth to the trial, but she went with a maiden horse and just got the upper hand of it and strung out the rest of the field. (She) pulled up really well so she will go ten days into a 1000-metre open trial and that'll be ten days before the McEwen, so preparation looks lovely."

Hieronimus banned for three years

Group 1-winning jockey Adam Hieronimus will not be allowed to ride again until 2023 after he was sentenced yesterday for betting offences. Hieronimus, who won his first Group 1 aboard Shout The Bar (Not A Single Doubt) in the Vinery Stud Stakes (Gr 1, 2000m) in March, was found guilty last month of having an interest in 30 bets on thoroughbred races over a two-year period, as well as giving false evidence to stewards. Hieronimus placed the bets through his cousin, stablehand Blake Paine, who has also been disqualified for two years and four months. The rider, who just last Saturday partnered Taikomochi (Snitzel) to win the Premier's Cup Prelude (1800m), will begin his suspension immediately, although he is likely to appeal his sentence.

V'landys wins court bid against ABC

Racing NSW chief Peter V'landys won a technical but significant victory in his defamation case against the ABC after a judge ruled on Monday that internal documents shared by employees were to be made available for review. V'landys faced cameras for the ABC's 7:30 program last year to speak about treatment of racehorses. In his interview he outlined the steps his organisation had taken to stop retired thoroughbreds being sent to knackeries in New South Wales. When broadcast, the ABC spliced his interview with footage of horses being butchered in a Queensland abattoir. V'landys claims he was defamed and the interview was an "ambush" that denied him a chance to explain that he had no jurisdiction in Queensland. Lawyers acting on behalf of V'landys are likely to seek communications between ABC journalist Caro Meldrum-Hanna and other staff who worked on the story. The ABC denies the story carried the damaging imputations.

Holland fined for misconduct

Group 1-winning jockey Dean Holland has been fined $1000 by Victorian stewards after pleading guilty to a misconduct charge stemming from his ride on Telemarketer (Time Thief) at Ballarat on August 11. The incident happened when he struck the horse in the vicinity of the head whilst loading into the barriers. The stewards took into account his guilty plea, his remorse for his actions, his record and the fact that the gelding was fractious while being loaded.

Pollett, Lambourne guilty on conduct charge

Punter Glenn Pollett has been found guilty of a conduct charge for comments he made on an online show, the Racing Rant alongside fellow panellist Marc Lambourne, on April 20 suggesting that jockey James McDonald was betting on races. Both he and Lambourne were ordered to face stewards and were charged under AR228(a) for conduct prejudicial to the image of racing earlier this year. Lambourne also faced additional charges for posting the content as well as failure and/or refusal to comply with a stewards direction. "The stewards find that irrespective of whether Mr Lambourne and Mr Pollett felt they were joking when the relevant segment of the Racing Rant program commenced, the stewards find that the third element of blameworthy conduct against both Mr Lambourne and Mr Pollett is established," the stewards report read. The stewards are yet to set a date for submissions of penalty.

Waikato stallion parade to proceed under restrictions

This weekend's Gavelhouse.com Waikato stallion parade is set to go ahead under Covid Level 2 government protocols. The stallion parade, which will feature Ace High (High Chaparral), Proisir (Choisir), Shocking (Street Cry) and Vadamos (Monsun), will visit the Matamata area farms on Saturday and Cambridge area farms on Sunday. All attendees will need to register in advance as a maximum of 90 people are allowed on the farms at any one time under government guidelines. If the registered numbers exceed 90, Waikato have announced they will parade their stallions a second time on the day to ensure everyone attending gets to see them. For more details and to register, please click here.

Glory Days returns from retirement

Auckland Cup (Gr 1, 3200m) winner Glory Days (Red Giant) returned from retirement at the Foxton trials yesterday where she finished fourth in her 1000-metre heat. The Bill Thurlow-trained eight-year-old failed to fire after returning from her campaign in Melbourne last spring and was subsequently retired after her fourth in the New Zealand St Leger (Listed, 2600m) at Trentham in March. However, after her sale fell through, her connections elected to bring her back into work and she could once again be on a feature-race path this spring, with the Windsor Park Plate (Gr 1, 1600m) and Livamol Classic (Gr 1, 2040m) at Hastings on her radar. "The pending sale didn't happen and just with what is going on around the world it wasn't that easy to do much with her so we decided we may as well put her back in work and see how we got on," Thurlow said. "She has had a really good long spell, she has been vetted and is 100 per cent sound and looks good, so we may as well carry on."

Hong Kong season opener changed

The Hong Kong racing season will now begin on Sunday, September 6 after the Hong Kong Legislative Council election scheduled for that day was controversially postponed for a year. The election meant that the season was due to start on Saturday, September 5, but with the election now off until 2021, the Hong Kong Jockey Club moved their opening day - traditionally one of the biggest betting days on the calendar - to its usual Sunday spot.

Decision time looms for Gray

After 20 years in Singapore, trainer Stephen Gray is planning to weigh up his future lifestyle options within the next couple of years. Gray formerly trained in New Zealand with his father Kevin for 12 seasons from 1988-99, the partnership winning almost 400 races, including ten stakes races. But he saw the opportunity in 2000 to take the plunge and attempt to carve out a career training in Singapore and his move in April that year has seen him establish himself as one of Singapore's leading trainers with almost 800 wins to his credit. "From that first brigade that came in around the same time, only Michael Clements and I are still here training," Gray said. "When I first came here it was a dream. I was the youngest trainer here and I thought I'd give it five years, then it became ten years and I've ended up staying 20 years. I saw a future. It was really exciting. The first ten years were great, but the last ten years it has changed a lot and it hasn't been as positive. Don't get me wrong, I'm still happy to be training here. But, like everyone, I'll be interested to see how the next 12 to 18 months will go. With what has happened here and all around the world with Covid-19, we're all not sure where we're all heading."

Love faces five

Love (Galileo) will take on five rivals in tomorrow's Yorkshire Oaks (Gr 1, 1m 4f) as the star filly looks to build on her two Classic wins this season. The Aidan O'Brien-trained daughter of Galileo (Sadler's Wells) will be making her first start since her sensational nine-length Epsom Oaks (Gr 1, 1m 4f) win but faces a tough test on the Knavesmire, with John Gosden running two in the race. Enable (Nathaniel) was ruled out last week but three-year-olds Frankly Darling (Frankel) and Franconia (Frankel) will still represent Britain's champion trainer. Frankly Darling, who will be ridden by Robert Havlin, finished behind Love in the Oaks but previously landed the Ribblesdale Stakes (Gr 2, 1m 4f) at Royal Ascot in June. Franconia makes her first start at Group level following back-to-back Listed wins, with the latest coming at York in July. She will be ridden by James Doyle.

O'Brien to unleash half-sister to Cup hero Rekindling

Joseph O'Brien, who became the youngest trainer to win the Melbourne Cup with Rekindling (High Chaparral) at the age of 24 in 2017, will unleash a half-sister to the star stayer at Killarney today. Three-year-old Kalakaua (Gleneagles) will race in the colours of Qatar Racing having been purchased by David Redvers for 115,000gns from the Castlebridge Consignment at Book 1 of the Tattersalls October Yearling Sale in 2018. She will be ridden on her debut by Declan McDonogh.

Bullock conquered England and Germany! - The third jockey to join our list of Incomparables -

BY STEVE MORAN | @ANZ_NEWS

Francis (Frank) Joseph Patrick Bullock (1885 - 1946) was the most successful jockey at home and abroad of the remarkable Australians who ventured overseas in the first decade of the twentieth century.

Bullock was inducted into the Australian Racing Hall of Fame in 2006 and is one of only 14 jockeys with a place in Sport Australia's broader and outstanding Hall of Fame.

Sport Australia describes Bullock as "Australia's first truly international jockey" which is a more than reasonable claim given his success in England, France and Germany, but I'd argue that tag should be shared with fellow pre-World War I travellers Frank Wootton and Bernard "Brownie" Carslake.

The case for Bullock heading the pioneers would be pinned on his greater success in Australia during and after the time of his travels, plus his win in the inaugural Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe in 1920 - a race he claimed again two years later but one which eluded Carslake and Wootton.

He won his first race in England in 1903, three years before the arrival of those fellow Australians, and won the Melbourne Cup in 1905 on Blue Spec before returning to England where his many credits included riding nine winners in four days at Royal Ascot and finishing second to Steve Donoghue in the jockeys championship in 1921 (and perhaps also in other years but the records are scant).

Bullock said Donoghue was the "best jockey he saw".

Frank Bullock after winning his second Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe at Longchamp in 1922

He also won two Caulfield Cups at "home" and his major race wins abroad also included the Ascot Gold Cup, English 1,000 Guineas, the Oaks, Sussex Stakes, Coronation Cup, the Cesarewitch and the St James's Palace Stakes; the Eclipse Stakes and Champion Stakes twice plus the Dewhurst and Middle Park Stakes on three occasions.

He was three times second in the Derby.

He was champion jockey in Germany five years straight from 1908 - that success coinciding with Frank Wootton's four straight championships in Britain from 1909 to 1912 - and is reported to have ridden more than 500 winners in Germany and Austria.

A curiosity of that time is that Bullock had ridden, before World War I, a horse named Cyklon for the German emperor, Kaiser Wilhelm II. The Kaiser sent Cyklon to England to race, but with the outbreak of war, the British government took possession of the horse. After the war, Frank arranged for Cyklon to be sent to Australia where he sired the 1927 Melbourne Cup winner, Trivalve.

Trivalve won the Cup in the hands of Bullock's brother-in-law Bobbie Lewis who would later teach, to ride, another of our "Incomparables" Ron Hutchinson. It was Lewis's fourth Cup win. Bullock was married to Lewis's sister Martha.

Bullock high on Racing Post list

Bullock was rated 14th best in the Racing Post's list of the top 50 flat jockeys of the 20th century. Only Frank Wootton (9th), Scobie Breasley (10th) and Bernard "Brownie" Carslake (12th) were - among his countrymen - ranked above him.

John Richardson, reader and former journalist (among myriad other hats worn in the racing and breeding industry), is able to provide some detail of Bullock's career through general recollection and his own "scribblings" published in The Informant in New Zealand.

"Apart from horses and horses' pedigrees, my other great interest is family history," Richardson emailed me last week, "and you can imagine the thrill I got when a few years back when I discovered that Frank Bullock was a distant relative of my mother who came, I thought, from a non-horsey background.

"His mother Eleanor Jane Wrathall and my mum were first cousins twice removed. Frank Bullock's grandfather Francis Wrathall and mum's great grandmother Mary Ann were brother and sister in a family of 14 kids".

Richardson, in The Informant, wrote: "Francis Patrick Bullock was born in 1884 at Heathcote, Victoria."

His father James Bullock is listed as hailing from Wild Duck (Creek) near Heathcote. This strikes a chord with me as you won't find a more sumptuous red wine than the Wild Duck Creek Estate Springflat Shiraz (now produced in that hamlet).

Jockeypedia says Bullock came to England in 1903 after "having enjoyed great success in both Australia and Europe". If that was so, then that success (in Europe) and travel came before his 18th birthday which seems remarkable for such a young man and at a time when the journey by ship took at least 45 days.

The motivation might simply have been to make money. Hard to believe now but then, and in the years immediately after World War II, it was more lucrative riding in England and Europe than in Australia.

We do know, as fact, that Bullock went to Germany before "returning to England" shortly before the outbreak of war.

The Kalgoorlie Sun, in 1910, reported that Bullock "had long been riding in big money races, and as he has been careful, he is now a man of means. He is the possessor of some fine property in Melbourne while his bank balance is a handy one."

Bullock's exploits were of interest in that part of Western Australia as his father James (Jim), noted as a well-known horseman, was described as either manager or proprietor of the Exchange Hotel, Coolgardie.

The Sun reported that Bullock was riding for the Royal Gratitz Stud at Hoppegarten on an annual retainer of £1250. It estimated his base annual income at about £2,000 - including other smaller retainers, expenses and private trial riding fees - exclusive of winning percentages. That sum, £2,000, was about eight times more than a manager would earn in Australia in 1910.

As to his later income in England, Bullock said: "Once a jockey is established, he makes more in England than he could in Australia because there are more rich owners."

Renowned Australian racing writer Bert Wolfe (Cardigan) recalled Bullock's liking for German racing when he wrote, in 1929, that it was the money which would lure James Munro to Germany the following year - to ride for Baron Oppenheim, as had Bullock.

"Bullock once told me he much preferred riding in Germany than France," Wolfe wrote. "For one thing, he said the German jockeys are not so good, and as a result, are more easily beaten than the French....and if you happen to beat a short-priced favourite at one of the leading French tracks, the crowd say and throw things at you but in Germany the racing public are more phlegmatic. They yell 'Hoch' a couple of times, and then go and drown their sorrows in a stein of beer."

It's not clear, after hours of searching newspaper archives, whether Bullock had to leave Germany in haste. We know his career flourished back in England and, despite his liking for racing in Germany, he was happy to regularly plunder good class races in France - often travelling by plane with his friend and rival Donoghue.

Donoghue wrote a newspaper column, at the time, and once mused that Bullock had thought he was deaf after returning from France after all-night partying had followed a major win. All was right after Donoghue reminded Bullock that his ears were stuffed with cotton wool which they'd inserted on the advice of the pilot before the crossing.

Frank Bullock

Bullock retired from race riding in 1925, candidly admitting he'd lost his nerve. "At 40 years of age when I should be in my prime, I feel old and shaken. I've had five bad falls within a few years and am losing my nerve," he told the English press.

Richardson notes that Bullock took up training on retirement from the saddle and was based in France from 1929 to 1935 and later, in 1940, in India for the Governor of Bombay. It was reported that he trained briefly at Caulfield after retiring before returning to England and setting up in Yorkshire in 1928.

Bullock died on August 26, 1946 at Banstead, Surrey at the home of his son-in-law, the jockey Walter Sibbrett who was one of the least-heralded "Incomparables" having won the 1935 Prix de l'Arc de Triomphe on Samos.

Thus he joined his father-in-law as a winner of Europe's greatest race, a distinction shared by seven other Australians - Rae "Togo" Johnstone, Scobie Breasley, Pat Glennon, Bill Pyers, Bill Williamson and father and son George and Gary Moore.

Notes:

1. The Incomparables - the Australian jockeys who performed with great distinction abroad (especially in England, Ireland and France) throughout the 20th century.

2. All British and Irish jockeys were considered for the RP list of the top 50 of the 20th century plus foreign jockeys, provided they were based there for at least five years.

Tax and a Covid home office

In our dealings with clients, the eligibility and deductibility of home office expenses is never far away.

What better time to revisit this topic than now when many of us must work from home to stay “Covid compliant” and therefore many more business owners and employees will be eligible to claim them from tax year 2020 and beyond.

This has always been a popular topic in our practice as many horse businesses are not just run from a rural property, but from a dedicated area of a private home. For instance, many commercial breeders do not own rural properties. There are also many employees in this industry, whose job is itinerant in nature, who do not conduct their work activities from an employer’s workplace.

This article will cover many working scenarios where home office expenses are allowable and will also share details of a new shortcut method, offered by the ATO, that makes it easier for employees to claim home office expenses without the usual amount of supporting records.

Home office expenses - overview

The deductibility of home office expenses will depend on the nature of the person’s activity. Cases will fall into two main types, being:

1. Where the person uses his or her home or part of it as a workplace, i.e. works from a “place of business”; and
2. Where the person is merely bringing work home from the office or other place of employment.

The ATO distinguishes these two types as having either the character of a “place of business”; or of a private study. The former refers to cases where an area is set aside exclusively by a self-employed person for income producing activities, e.g. a doctor’s surgery. It also includes the situation where an employer provides no other work location for an employee. The latter refers to the situation where an area of the home is simply used in connection with income producing activities, i.e. where working at home is a matter of convenience.

Working from home

What is a “place of business”?

ATO rulings outline the following factors which may indicate that the area within the home has the character of a “place of business”. None of them alone, or in combination, will conclusively determine that the area constitutes a place of business, but they will be considered along with other relevant factors.

The factors are:

- the area is clearly identifiable as a place of business;
- the area is not readily suitable or adaptable for use for private or domestic purposes in association with the home generally;
- the area is used exclusively or almost exclusively for carrying on a business; or
- the area is used regularly for visits of clients or customers.

Where there is “no alternative place of business”

In the situation where it is necessary to work from home because there is no alternative place of business, the area will only be considered a place of business if:

- it is a requirement inherent in the nature of the person’s activities that the person needs a place of business;
- the person’s circumstances are such that there is no alternative place of business and it was necessary to work from home; and
- the area of the home is used exclusively or almost exclusively for income producing purposes.

This principle allows, for example, a company to claim home office expenses where its employee directors do not have an alternative place of business, i.e. does not own or lease an office.

Private “home study” used as a “matter of convenience”

The more common case is that where a private study of is used as a matter of convenience.

The ATO notes the following examples:

- a barrister who reads client briefs at home;
- a teacher who prepares lessons or marks assignments at home; and
- an insurance agent who maintains client files and occasionally interviews a client in his or her home office.

N.B. In April 2020, the ATO announced a new method for claiming expenses for working from home, via a home study, due to the coronavirus pandemic. Using this “shortcut” method, you can claim a tax deduction of 80 cents for each hour worked from home between March 1 2020 and June 30 2020.

Categories of “home office expenses”

I have noted above the circumstances where home office expenses can be claimed, the next question is what type of expenses can be claimed in these scenarios.

Home office expenses fall into two categories:

1. occupancy expenses; and
2. running expenses.

If a “place of business” – “occupancy” and “running” can be claimed

If the office is a “place of business”; both categories may be claimed; but if it is simply a home study then only the running expenses may be claimed. Occupancy expenses are those which relate to ownership or use of the home and, thus, are fixed in nature. These include rent, mortgage interest, municipal and water rates, house insurance premiums, and repairs.

Running expenses are those relating to use of the facilities within the home, e.g. for a home study. They include electricity for lighting, heating and cooling, cleaning costs, depreciation of professional library, equipment, furniture and furnishings, and the cost of repairs of these latter items. These expenses are only claimable to the extent that they are additional expenses incurred as a result of income producing activities. For discussion on the apportionment of home office expenses see below.

Examples of occupancy expenses denied for a “home study”

The courts have, in a series of cases noted below, examined the deductibility of the expenses relating to the house itself, namely, mortgage interests, rates, rent and insurance and has held that these are not allowable deductions for a “home study”. As noted above, only running expenses can be claimed in the home study scenario.

Case 1 – it was held that expenses incurred in providing light and heating for the person exclusively while engaged in work from which he derives income would be deductible but not if it was also provided for the members of the person’s family.

Case 2 – the person and his wife purchased a house in their family trust. The person, a barrister, occupied one room as a study (not a place of business). It was further agreed that he could occupy the premises as a residence provided he paid all outgoings. The person claimed a deduction for the payment made to the trust for the use of the home office. The person’s claim was ultimately denied by the courts. The court indicated that though the outgoings satisfied general deductibility rules, they should still be excluded as being of a “domestic” nature.

Case 3 – the person, a barrister, was similarly denied a claim for a proportion of mortgage interest, rates and insurance premiums referable to a home study.

Case 4 – where the person chooses to work at home in a study rather than at his place of business, this business use is not sufficient to change the private or domestic nature of the dwelling. This was the case where a farmer conducted his farming business at a separate place to his private residence. Accordingly, time spent on farm business in his home study did not allow for any deductions for rates or mortgage interest.

Examples of occupancy expenses for a “place of business”

Case 5 – Self-employed persons have been allowed deductions for rent, interest and the like on the basis that the home area was a “place of business”. For example, a full-time script writer wrote her scripts in a room in her flat. She was allowed a deduction for part of the rent.

Case 6 – A deduction was allowed for municipal rates and mortgage interest on a floor area basis and for electricity and telephone on a usage basis, to a person photogrammetrist. The deduction was granted on the basis that the person conducted his business solely from his home.

Apportioning “place of business” occupancy expenses

The ATO discusses methods of apportionment of occupancy expenses.

In most cases home office expenses should be apportioned on a floor area basis. Where the home office is only used for part of the year, expenses should be apportioned using both a floor area and a time basis. In some circumstances the ATO will accept a bona fide estimate of the percentage of business use. One such situation is for the use of depreciable items such as professional library or equipment. Another circumstance is when apportioning heating/cooling and lighting expenses. A person, e.g. a teacher, using a room for income producing purposes at the same time as other family members, cannot claim such expenses, because they are not incurred exclusively for the taxpayer’s benefit. If the taxpayer uses the area at a different time to other members of the family, then the power expenses relating to that area, for that period, are claimable.

Beware Capital Gains Tax implications if claiming a “place of business”

In conclusion, it is important to note that there may be capital gains tax implications where Home Office occupancy expenses are claimed in relation to a person’s private residence. Generally, capital gains tax does not apply to a taxpayer’s private residence. However, the capital gains provisions deem that a capital gain (or loss) accrues to the extent to which a private residence disposed of was also used for the purpose of earning assessable income during the period of ownership.

As a rule of thumb, it can be expected that where occupancy expenses are claimed for an area of a home which is a “place of business”, the capital gains provisions will apply. In some circumstances, claiming of Home Office occupancy expenses will not be worthwhile if the amount of any capital gain exceeds the tax benefits from claiming such expenses.

2019 (9 ran) Valdermoro (1) Richard Fahey 2 9-1 9/2 Tony Hamilton RPR108

BETTING FORECAST: 2 Cloudbridge, 7-2 Darvel, Royal Scimitar, 11-2 Gear Up, 9 Praise Of Shadows, 14 Titan Rock, 20 Broxi, 25 Spycatcher.

VERDICT A field full of promising colts. It's not easy to know which will take the biggest step forward but there was plenty to like about the way in which CLOUDBRIDGE drew clear on his Leicester debut and he's preferred to Clive Cox's Royal Scimitar, whose own debut success has been boosted a few times since. Praise Of Shadows opened up with a clearcut win at Chester last week and also shouldn't be underestimated. 2019 (5 ran) Logician (2) John Gosden 3 9-0 10/11F Frankie Dettori RPR119

BETTING FORECAST: 15-8 Mogul, 3 Darain, 7 Highland Chief, Roberto Escobarr, 10 Pyledriver, 11 Subjectivist, 12 Berkshire Rocco, 14 Juan Elcano.

VERDICT Subjectivist ran a belting race in the Gordon Stakes, sticking to his task after setting out his stall in no uncertain terms from the front, but he may well find that further improvement from MOGUL (nap) takes care of him again. Highland Chief was also bang there in that Goodwood race. Darain has a higher profile than fellow twice-raced candidate Roberto Escobarr but the latter might just turn out to be the better prospect for today's graduation at 1m4f and he could emerge as Mogul's most serious challenge. 2019 (9 ran) Japan (7) A P O'Brien 3 8-13 5/1 Ryan Moore RPR125

BETTING FORECAST: 5-4 Ghaiyyath, 7-2 Kameko, Magical, 4 Lord North, 50 Rose Of Kildare.

VERDICT The latest in a line of riveting Group 1 races this summer. Powerful front-runner Ghaiyyath sets the standard, assuming that Magical reverts to patient tactics and doesn't try to take him on for the lead. The highly progressive Lord North is respected but Guineas winner KAMEKO may be able to atone for a luckless run in the Sussex Stakes and take his form to an even higher level now he is tackling 1m2f, which should suit him. Ghaiyyath is a deserved favourite but Kameko is a tempting bet at the prices. [Steve Boow]
